The transdisciplinary Global Workplaces minor upskills students from any disciplinary background with the knowledge and experience required to succeed in the increasingly globalised, disrupted and diverse world of work. The core values of ethics and diversity run as a backbone throughout the curriculum, providing a moral thread that underpins and helps to apply theoretical training in ethics, management, and international trade. At the same time, the minor offers real-world training in data analytics, business, law, client management and digital life that gives non-professional students a leg up in the market. This multi-disciplinary curriculum is fulfilled by required transdisciplinary core unit that has been developed in consultation with PricewaterhouseCoopers, a globally leading consultant advisory form.
