

BACHELOR OF PSYCHOLOGICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCES (1910)

Western Sydney University Program Code: 1910

AQF Level: 7

This program applies to students who commenced in 2022 or later.

Students should follow the program structure for the session start date relevant to the year they commenced.

For Commencement Year 2015 to 2021 - please refer to 1711.2 - Bachelor of Social Science (Psychology) (<http://handbook.westernsydney.edu.au/hbook/course.aspx?course=1711.2>)

For Commencement Year 2014 - please refer to 1711.1 - Bachelor of Social Science (Psychology) (<http://handbook.westernsydney.edu.au/hbook/course.aspx?course=%201711.1>)

The Bachelor of Psychological and Social Sciences provides the core accredited sequence in Psychology. Psychology is the field of inquiry that applies scientific techniques and methods to understand and explain individuals' behaviours and experiences. As a discipline, it involves the application of psychological knowledge to practical problems in human behaviour.

This Psychology program includes exciting topics of study such as, personality, psychological disorders, health and well-being, learning and memory, cognition, language and perception, motivation and emotion, neuroscience and the biological bases of behaviour, developmental and social psychology. The knowledge and skills learnt through this degree will prepare graduates for a broad range of careers and study options.

In addition to key studies in Psychology, students will also undertake a set number of subjects in Social Sciences to develop complementary knowledge and skills including studies in sociology, geography and urban studies, criminology and human welfare.
