Nursing Practice

If your last professional experience placement was more than 12 months ago, you are required to complete subject NURS 7090 Professional Experience Placement (PEP) Currency (PG) to be eligible to apply for registration as a Nurse (Division 1) in Australia.

The Nursing Practice subjects are the foundational for student learning in the program. They consist of two major learning contexts for students: simulation and clinical placement. Nursing practice may take place in any health service appropriate to the focus of the Nursing Practice subject, for example aged care facilities, hospitals, medical centres, community health organisations. These environments are essential to provide students with the complexities associated with nursing, the ability to apply their learning to situations where people are experiencing an alteration in their health and socialising students into the work domain.

Simulation is where aspects of the professional practice environment are artificially created to enable students to learn in a safe, non-threatening environment. Simulation is used to develop a range of clinical tasks and professional skills such as teamwork, time management, self-awareness and effective communication and supports students in meeting the stated learning outcomes of the program. The School has a wide range of simulation equipment on each campus.

The percentage of time spent by students in each context will vary, depending on the stage of the student in the program for example, at the beginning of the program more hours will be spent in the simulation context than in the health care sector. As the program progresses there is a scaling up of hours spent in the health care sector with fewer hours being spent in the simulation context. In the final session of third year a significant proportion of knowledge and skills consolidation will occur primarily in a clinical practice environment to support transition into graduate practice.
