Credit Points 10

Coordinator Felicity Castagna (https://directory.westernsydney.edu.au/search/name/Felicity Castagna/)

Description Writing Industries takes a close look at the business of writing. Topics include literary cultures and economies, community activism, social media and author branding, Young Adult Literature, literary controversies and what Australian authors sell into overseas markets. Students will look closely at diverse literary organisations and festivals, and how they shape cultures and support writers. They will explore the role of editors, critics and publishers – from DIY zine-making to independent presses and large commercial ventures. Students will gain insights into building writing careers, working in the arts and publishing industries, community building and culture-making, and teaching practices of writing.

Students will be expected to have undergraduate first year level reading and writing skills.

Learning Outcomes

1. Compare and analyse different modes, genres and processes of publication
2. Analyse the economics of writing and publishing
3. Recognise and discuss the changing relationships between authors, publishers, editors and readers
4. Critically examine the role of digital cultures in marketing authors and stimulating literary debate
5. Critique the role of networks of organisations within the literary industry.

Subject Content

Students will explore the idea that the writer is part of a larger industry which includes an ecology of booksellers, festivals, funding bodies, publishers, agents, literary prizes, critics and community organisations. Through a mix of lectures and practical tutorials students will both explore a number of case studies of the industry as well as researching and writing their own case studies. Subject content will include:

1. An overview of the Australian publishing industry
2. The economics of writing and publishing
3. Literary trends, issues and controversies

4. The writer as change maker and literary activist
5. The writer and popular culture
6. The writer in the age of social media
7. The role of literary magazines, festivals and collectives
