LANG 7022 INVESTIGATING SECOND LANGUAGE ACQUISITION

Credit Points 10

Legacy Code 100919

Coordinator Stacey Sherwood (https://directory.westernsydney.edu.au/search/name/Stacey Sherwood/)

Description This subject is intended for Linguistics Honours students as well as TESOL and Interpreting and Translation Postgraduate students aiming to provide a focused theoretical and research framework in the area of second language acquisition (SLA) from a psycholinguistic viewpoint. This subject widens the theoretical and methodological basis of students intending to undertake further studies and/or research in the Linguistics and SLA area and also serves the TESOL and languages teachers interested in applying SLA-based knowledge to language learning, pedagogy and classroom research.

Knowledge of a LOTE and/or some Linguistics and/or some language teaching experience.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this subject, students should be able to:

1. Provide an overview of the recent history of second language acquisition as shaped by early studies based on contrastive analysis, error analysis and the concept of interlanguage
2. Critically appraise current studies, theoretical models and methodologies adopted in the investigation of second language acquisition.
3. Identify individual and social factors purported to have a role in the successful acquisition of a second language in both natural and classroom settings.
4. Demonstrate the developmental and variational dimensions of language acquisition as envisaged, for instance, by Processability Theory and apply this knowledge to profiling of learner language.
5. Critically appraise the "Teachability Hypothesis" and current L2 pedagogy including communicative language teaching and 'focus on form'.

6. Design and conduct a small-scale project investigating some aspect of second language acquisition or L2 instruction, or Interpreting and Translation skills learning and pedagogy.
7. Use computer-aided linguistic corpus analysis as a research tool.

Subject Content

- Overview of The historical development of language acquisition as A field of Study including interlanguage studies and findings.
