Credit Points 10

Coordinator Peter Lewis (https://directory.westernsydney.edu.au/search/name/Peter Lewis/)

Description This subject begins with a brief examination of biopsychosocial theories of childhood and adolescence as a background for the critical analysis of current topics in the health and wellbeing of children and adolescents. Case studies will be used to explore topics in child and adolescent health from an interdisciplinary perspective. The subject will also address issues of child and adolescent health amongst diverse populations and in different health care settings. Knowledge gained will support beginning practitioners in nursing to take informed positions on topics relevant to child and adolescent health.
